THESE ARE MEN...

I watched the second practice session of the 1973-74 basketball Yoemen. They start about 6-1 and reach about 6-9.

Of the 12 or more scrimmaging for varsity spots, the average height is going to approximate 6-3 to 6-4 for the starting five. You read that right.

A 6-8 or 6-9 sophomore, 6-6 junior, scads of 6-1 to 6-3 juniors and seniors and most solidly built.

A roster is forthcoming and the first game is Friday night in Brenham.

John Barron clears 6-2 and arches the long ones, a senior; at double post are 6-6 Brooks and 6-8 plus Bennett, junior and sophomore respectively; Hollas, White, Scott among others in guard and forward contention outside and in the corners.

This ought to be a year for basketball in Cameron.

One coach remarked about early season quickness, which is a feat in itself for that much height that young.

Watch this club. The last edition won Zone and lost to Taylor for the district AAA crown. This new Yoe club has the ingredients, early season or no, to go a long way, beyond district, given the drive and moxie it takes for a big club not only to beat the good, small club, but to beat the good, big opponent too.

They are boys in age. But these are men on the court.

114-114-114

A word should be said about Cameron's final game at Belton. Except for a long pass just before half, which scored, and the late fourth quarter, the 27-6 Belton win over the grid Yoemen failed to tell the whole story.

Fullback Whiteside almost got his 100-yard average, about 85 yards net rushing, against one of the best lines in AAA Texas football. And it was scrappy Yoe linemen who contained the Belton backs for most of the game.

It was passing that put Belton beyond reach. That 61-yard play in the second quarter proved the opening wedge.

The Yoe had a good year against tough competition.

CHURCH MARKS 100th YEAR - Roy Newton, elder of the Maysfield Presbyterian Church for more than 40 years and son of the Church's first resident pastor, stands in fromt of the steel sttepled church where a 100th anniversary service will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday. A state historical marker commemorating founding of the church in 1873 will also be dedicated.

County Studies Waste Disposal

Solid waste disposal for Milam County was the topic for discussion when Commissioners met Monday with representatives from towns and communities in the county.

Discussion ied off with Cameron Mayor Gene Blake, who emphasized that the need for large disposal sites for the county is now urgent. He noted that Thorndale, Rockdale and Cameron are running out of space for landfill operations. Blake said the problem involves all of the county, not only the cities.

Many rural residents bring garbage to city landfill sites and if the site is closed as it is on weekends, they just dump the garbage and trash on the road, Blake said.

Blake said he had asked the Central Texas Council of Governments to make a survey in regards to solid waste disposal. A representative from CTCOG attended the meeting, presenting the survey which was in bulky notebook form, along with maps showing the different soil types in Milam County.

Blake said participation in a county dump could be worked out among communities on a pro-rata basis, with the county purchasing land for the landfill and communities paying their share over a period of 15 or 20 years, which would be the approximate life of one landfill area.

Mayor Harold Luckey of Rockdale said his city is facing a serious problem now on a landfill site. N. E. Alford, Rockdale city manager, said they keep getting communications from the state control boards on air and water. He said one central dump operated properly could solve the problem for the county. He said the county has an obligation towards its residents.

Thorndale's mayor also spoke, reporting that the city is running out of landfill space. He said the city has been cited by the State Health Department stating regulations, but Thorndale is too small, he added, to do everything required.

It was pointed out that land used for this purpose, when properly covered daily, would result in richer soil than was originally true of the land. Filled sites could be used for a park, or crop lands as well. The ground is not lost -- it is improved.

A central site would be cheaper for cities, which can ill afford large machinery which would be used at the dump. The representative from CTCOG said estimates were that the county puts out at least 20,000 tons of refuse a year, and that it would take 68 acres for 20 years. Mayor Blake said that estimate was too low, and that 100 acres would be better to take care of all communities' trash.

It was also pointed out that revenue sharing funds would be available for per capita expenses of each community. Cities now hurting the most are Thorndale, Rockdale and Cameron, and a suitable landfill area could be organized equidistant to the three cities.

Commissioners said they would take the matter under advisement for study.

In other business, commissioners accepted the resignation of Theo Telg, Constable of Precinct 3, and heard Commissioner Dalton Caffey report that he had run out of gasoline and couldn't get any more from Texaco, the supplier for the county. He was advised to seek gasoline from some other source.

Friends Of Kubiak Plan 3-County Party

ROCKDALE

Friends of Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale this week announced plans to honor the area legislator later this month with a gala reception for citizens of Milam, Falls and Williamson counties.

The reception will be Thursday, Nov. 29 at 7 p.m. in the Rockdale V. F. W. Hall.

Tickets for the gathering--which supporters say also will serve as a campaign kickoff and fund raiser--are $10 a couple.

Marlin businessman Joe Holloway and Mrs. James (Patsy) Bartosh of Taylor are serving as co-chairmen for the party. Other steering committee members in the three counties are also being named to help with ticket sales and arrangements, Holloway said.

"The enthusiasm we've seen so far is heart-warming," Holloway said "Dan and Zana have done much to merit the appreciation of everyone in this district, and I think the great turnout on the 29th will show it."

Holloway said that several statewide officials, along with a host of Kubiak's House colleagues, are expect in Rockdale for the reception --but that "the formal program, if any, will be short and sweet."

The 35-year-old Kubiak has represented Falls, Milam and Williamson counties since legislative redistricting of 1971. Prior to that he represented Falls, Milam and Robertson counties for two terms.

During the past year Kubiak has served as chairman of the House Education Committee where he distinguished himself by wrestling with statewide problems of school finance--a crisis forced on the state last year by federal court orders.

Earlier this year he was named among the "Ten Best" members of the House and Senate by Texas Monthly Magazine, which noted that he is "the best educated Education chairman in modern history."

Maysfield Church Has 100th Birthday

In 1873 the nine member Maysfield Presbyterian Church received it's charter At 3 p.m. Sunday, November 18, the congregation, including descendents of those pioneers, will officially mark the church's 100 anniversary.

A state historical marker commemorating the chartering of the church, erection of the steel steepled house of worship and vision of early church leaders, will be dedicated as a permanent marker in the church yard.

Circuit preachers helped guide the Maysfield Church during the early years until James K. P. Newton was called as a resident preachers in 1886. Newton was pastor until his death in 1896.

He also opened a private school in Maysfield, was supply preacher for the Cameron Presbyterian Church and was Milam County Superintendent of Schools from 1894 until 1896.

Prominent in the anniversary celebration will be descendants of Rev. Newton. His son, Roy Newton, an elder in the Maysfield Presbyterian Church for more than 40 years, will take part in the service as well as two grandsons, Rev. James William (Billy) Newton of Dallas and Rev. James Wiley Mosley of Austin.

Membership in the church is now small, however a large number of former members and pastors are expected for the anniversary service Sunday including several prominent state officials.

Elder Newton said there were only 15 presently on the church rolls, however the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations meet together for Sunday services, sharing their sanctuary on alternate weeks. Rev. Bill Barnett of Austin serves the church as pastor.

Tickets On Sale For Highway Dept. Barbecue

Tickets are now on sale for a barbecue dinner honoring officials from the district and local state Highway Department to be held November 27 at 7 p.m. at Methodist Fellowship Hall.

This annual event is sponsored by the Cameron Chamber of Commerce through its Highway and Good Roads Committee, LaVert McKinney, chairman.

"We continue to enjoy excellent roads in Milam County," McKinney said, "and we like to express our appreciation to the fine staff of our state highway department through this effort each year."

McKinney also stated that the barbecue dinner is an informal affair and encouraged all residents in the area to attend.

Tickets may be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce office or from any of the following members of the ticket committee: McKinney, Douglas Buck, Max Shuemate, James Hudson, Neil Barr, Bill Hornung, Johnny Barrett, Roy Ingram, Cecil Widner, Bill Watkins, Jim Camp, L. W. Turner Jr., Bernay Dusek, Jim Lafferty, Bill McCutchen, Max McClaren, Morris Eplen, Dan Long.

Residents of Buckholts may purchase tickets from Richard Crowe at the Buckholts State Bank.

Chili Supper To Benefit Center

Don't forget the chili supper planned for Friday night at Simon George Hall starting at 5:30 p.m. with serving till 8 p.m. Proceeds from the supper will benefit the Cameron Day Care Center.

Tickets will be available at the door at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12. Pie and cake will be available at extra cost. Tickets are also available from members of the Center's board of directors.

Trustees Adopt School Changes

Cameron school trustees adopted three suggestions from Supt. D. R. Dodson for changes in operating procedures for the Cameron School District at a regular meeting Monday evening.

The changes will become effective Monday, November 26.

The changes are:

1. Open all building doors at 8:05 a.m. each school day with students on campus at this time being required to enter building and report to areas designated by various building principals until classes start at 8:30 a.m. Students arriving from 8:05 to 8:30 being required to enter building upon arrival on campus or parking areas.

2. Building principals to work out methods, schedules and duties of teachers and aides from 8 to 8:30 a.m.

3. Buses are not to discharge students at any building before 8:05 a.m. If drivers see they are going to be early, slow down or hold students on bus.

A fourth suggestion, to try to work out some kind of closed campus idea during lunch hours, was turned down by trustees as being too difficult to enforce.

In other business, the board:

Heard a report from Supt. Dodson about the difficulty in getting someone to install a steel fire escape at Ada Henderson School. The school has about $250 invested in the fire escape at this time, he said;

Granted a leave of absence for Mrs. Raynette Green;

Voted to accept change in board policies dealing with maintenance and operation of buildings and grounds. According to the policy, it will be the responsibility of the principal to supervise the operation and maintenance of school equipment and grounds under his jurisdiction. Another policy was also added on dealing with duties of janitors to keep up the grounds;

Appointed a textbook committee including teachers and all principals to select books for the next school year;

Heard a report on lunchroom operation which was more hopeful than the last report, showing the lunchroom will probably break even during the coming months. Dodson said a large amount of food commodities is also helping keep costs down;

Discussed what to do about Daylight Savings Time if it is adopted for year-round use. Trustees decided to wait and see what happens;

Heard Mrs. Maurina Corley ask for consideration of the application for the job of superintendent from Tom Goldson of Bellville;

Discussed paying for meals on out of town sports and other trips by school students. Dana Kestenbaum said the school ought to pay for all, or not pay for anyone. Trustees are leaving the issue for more information by the next board meeting;

Mrs. Carol Barr spoke of the need for a new tennis net and cranks for the tennis court.

Supt. Dodson said it was getting time to plant the horseshoe in front of Yoe High, but estimates of some $1,800 for planting dwarf holly was too high. It was suggested that Dodson ask the two local garden clubs to take on the planting as a civic project.

Board President Calvin Cobb suggested that the board select certain areas of school and invite teachers to come to board meetings and tell about their programs. It will be left up to Cobb and Dodson to put this on the agenda at a suitable time.

Pecan Failure Means No Show

County Agent Bill McCutchen says that due to one of the most complete pecan crop failures that this county has ever experienced, there will be no Milam County pecan show in 1973.

The show was scheduled to be held in Cameron on Saturday, November 17, but pecan sub-committee members feel that a show cannot be justified this year because of an almost non-existant crop.

Anton Anderle, chairman of the pecan sub-committee said that the show was not being discontinued and would be held again next year.

Alcoa Expanding Scrap Can Recycling

Aluminum Company of America, which produces more metal in Texas than any other state, has announced the startup of expanded scrap handling facilities to keep pace with the rapid growth of its aluminum can reclamation program.

Fred Bergeron, Rockdale Works manager and project director of Alcoa's new Anderson County plant near Palestine, said the multimillion dollar expansion at its Warrick Operations (near Evansville, Inc.) permits the recycling of an additional five million pounds each month of scrap beer and soft drink cans collected in various parts of the United States.

The added equipment was necessary to handle the increasing tonnage of beverage cans being returned to Alcoa for recycling.

Bergeron said the expansion reflects the company's conviction that the continued growth of the all-aluminum beverage containers market and the economics of recycling the light metal will provide impetus to the continuing upswing of can collection and recycling.

"At this one plant, we are now able to recycle 18 million pounds of scrap each month, including returned containers," Bergeron explained. "In light of increased demand for aluminum and production cutbacks because of power shortages in the Pacific Northwest, this addition to the metal supply is significant. We expect that our container recycling program will continue to grow.

"Increased recycling of aluminum is particularly significant as America seeks to relieve its energy shortage. Aluminum can be recycled with only five percent of the energy needed to obtain the metal from ore, and thus pays a great energy bonus whenever it is remelted. Furthermore, ore supplies are conserved as the metal is reclaimed."

The new Indiana facilities include crushing, conveying, delacquering and melting equipment. At Warrick, Alcoa processes reclaimed cans, which are remelted with scrap returned from can manufacturing customers and cast into ingot for rolling into light-gauge container sheet.

Alcoa operates two smelters in Texas and produces 470,000 tons of aluminum annually. Its Rockdale plant in Central Texas is the company's largest, while its Point Comfort smelter on the Gulf Coast is a major producer of can stock.

The company's three-year-old can reclamation program in Dallas-Fort Worth, called "Yes We Can," is the highest volume recycling effort in the nation.

Like Presidents...

Historian Arnold Toynbee says that nations desire unity in a "time of troubles."

We gather both parties in Washington are surfeited with troubles following the assassination of one president, the retirement of a second and resignation-impeachment talk toward the third.

One can blame the limitations of men to accomplish Olympian feats in the White House or one can estimate the short view of the American people who place all their confidence in the White House. This is not unlike the American Indian's attitude toward the "Great White Father" after most of his local agreements with the white man were voided by the white man in the early West.

Because we had won all our wars or at least never lost, we thought the White House and Congress could handle the Asian War that our European antecedents avoided at all costs ever since entering the Orient.

We won all our wars upto World War I because we were too far from European armies to reach and hold here against able, energetic Americans.

A lot of that energy has been absorbed in the "good life" and most of our citizenship has been transferred to Central government embodied by a victorious president. So he gets shot, run out of office or impeached.

Our public education system during this time of American ascendency has continued to teach the frontier fact, but modern myth that every school boy can be president of something if he works hard enough and, in effect, follows his pioneer spirit. It isn't so. Some can make it, but the days of a Lyndon Johnson or even Richard M. Nixon to the White House are numbered. Criticism of how they attain such heights is tearing this country to pieces.

But they understood the pioneer spirit and made it the 20th Century way. Trouble is, leaders of our central government can't persuade, except when an energy crisis or war hits home, that we aren't or never were invincible as a nation. Incredibly rich, incredibly ambitious, yes, but never invincible.

It takes the accumulation of misery which Presidents by necessity must cope with, but which too few understand on a day to day basis.

Our present, "time of troubles" is part of a cycle of events, Toynbee or any fine historian would understand, but it is for us as Americans to realize that riding a wishbone and overbelieving our own mythology put us squarely in times like these.

Now, yes, now we shall unify because we are facing reality, like presidents.

Washington Bogs Down...

There are serious doubts as to how much governing the federal government will do or how much legislating Congress will do between now and year's end. The reason: doubt and confusion caused by Watergate and events related thereto and the Mid-east war.

Call almost any agency, department, or Congressional office, walk down any Congressional or government office hallway and you will almost always hear in the background a radio tuned to the Watergate hearings or the latest breaking news of firings or resignations.

ALL OF THIS MAKES the business of governing and legislating most difficult. Oh, the hearings and the floor speeches continue and offices are still open from 9 to 5, but the vital heartbeat of a smooth-running government with high morale is very faint, almost nonexistent.

No one really knows who is next. No one knows if his boss this morning will be his boss by nightfall. If you like your boss, you are extremely cautious so as not to get him into trouble at either end of Pennsylvania Avenue. If you do not like him, you tend to avoid his directives, thinking that maybe he won't be around too much longer.

PUBLISHERS SHOULD be aware that for the next few months at least, Washington is going to be more of a morass than ever. In such an atmosphere, it is difficult to make sure your views are being heard, for the person who appears to be listening to you may really have his ear to the ground (or thanks to today's modern technology may simply be plugged into a transistor radio).

One good thing has resulted from all of this. There appears to be a decrease in the number of public statements and press releases flowing out of Congressional and government offices.

Outlook For Bleak Winter Growing Steadily Worse

Outlook for a bleak winter grew steadily worse as the energy crisis mounted.

Speed limit reductions and year-round daylight savings time, recommended by President Richard Nixon, may be some of the milder results.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, assessing the president's proposals and reaction of other states before announcing his own program, said gasoline rationing is an "Eventuality that will have to be considered."

Grimmest of all was Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Langdon's forecast: Some people in Texas are going to be cold this winter." Those who use butane, propane or electricity for their heating are the ones most likely to get the shivers, said Langdon.

Middle distillate fuels, used primarily to generate electricity -- and of increasing importance due to the shortage of natural gas -- may also be in short supply as much as 400,000 barrels adaily, according to Langdon's estimate.

Meanwhile, the Nixon administration altered previously-announced to Langdon's estimate.

Meanwhile, the Nixon administration altered previously - announced allocation policies to allow middle distillate suppliers to provide Texas customers diesel fuel, fuel oil and kereosene with our limit through November.

Even in the reprieve from mandatory allocations, there was an implied warning to Texas electric utility companies: come December they may be running short of fuel oil, since allocation formulas are based on 1972 purchases. Most Texas utilities, used to plenty of natural gas, didn't use much fuel oil to fire their boilers in 1972.

Things apparently are going to get a lot worse before they get better on the energy front.

DEFEAT ASSESSED

For the fifth time in eight years Texans voted down a pay raise for legislators, and assessment of the reason why varied widely.

House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. and others concluded that the vote on the $15,000 annual-pay-annual-sessions amendment was due to "tragic events at the national level that have crushed public confidence in our political and governmental systems."

Not so, said Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Granberry, who maintained lawmakers asked too much salary and made an error in coupling the pay raise issue with that of annual sessions.

Granberry suggested voters will approve $8,000 to $10,000 salaries and limited annual sessions with proper leadership support and a clear presentation.

At any rate, Texans undoubtedly will get to ballot on the issue again in some form after next year's constitutional convention. Most-likely proposal will be creation of a commission of citizens, as recommended by the Constitutional Revision Commission, to set salaries of lawmakers and other state officials. Prospects for the kind of unlimited annual legislative sessions recommended by the Revision Commission dimmed with results of the November 6 election.

CHIEF SWORN IN

In swearing-in ceremonies for Ben McDonald as executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs, Governor Briscoe promised that the department will stand ready with aid to local communities.

He said McDonald will have a team of experts ready at all times to go for on-the-scene help in community emergencies. A special long-distance telephone will be available for calls to the department. The Community Affairs department encompasses the significant drug abuse program, as well as such divisions as housing, child development, youth services, public employment model cities, local government personnel and a number of others.

In naming attorney McDonald, the Governor said the former Corpus Christi mayor represented the dynamic leadership the Community Affairs Department needs.

HEARING SET

Life insurance policy price disclosure and cost comparisons will be considered at a public hearing here November 27.

The State Insurance Board is then expected to review a model rule covering "life insurance interest-adjusted cost comparison indexes."

While the Insurance Board does not set prices of life insurance policies, it does police misleading and deceptive sales practices. Board Chairman Joe Christie said calculations of life insurance costs through the cash-surrender value doesn't always show true cost to purchasers.

WILL GET REPORTS

Gov. Dolph Briscoe Talked about two important study reports forthcoming from the Texas Research League -- at that groups' annual meeting last week.

He will soon receive a report on the impact of the federal welfare law on Texas' public welfare costs, and he revealed that TRL is working on a governmental reorganization study for the Governor's office.

Another study is being prepared by the research organization for the Legislative Property Tax committee on "state school financing."

"The legislative committee has asked TRL to prepare a plan to estimate property values in all Texas school districts," the Governor said.

During his annual talk before the statewide group of businessmen, he discussed the need for a "zero" base budgeting system for the state, and changes in the constitution to strengthen local units of government.

Briscoe talked about the energy crisis -- blaming the shortage of natural gas on the artifical "price" set on gas by the federal government.

"The crisis can be solved best by industry -- not by government," he added. "The people of Texas are interested in 'less governmental' intervention into their affairs. "And," the concluded, "they are not interested in any new taxes."

IN THE COURTS

The Supreme Court upheld an intermediate court decision that a Houston fireman's family was entitled to death benefits and disability payments following his illness and death in 1969. The High Court said a fireman need not prove the actual medical cause of his disability to establish his eligibility for such benefits.

A Lubbock murder conviction and 10-year prison sentence were affirmed by the Court of Criminal Appeals, which ruled admissible a Texas Ranger's testimony that the defendant confessed the shooting to him.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

Although nobody has acted like it, everybody knows there's just a certain number of barrels of oil left inside the earth and when that's gone that's all she wrote, no naturally everybody is interested in steps being taken to conserve what we've go until a substitute can be invented.

Some European countries for example where they don't have professional football have banned Sunday driving, in the U.S. all government cars are now required to stay under 50 miles an hour and the rule may be extended to everybody, schools in colder areas may have shorter hours and longer holidays, the country may go back to daylight saving time the year around, airlines are making fewer flights, homes and offices are urged to turn their thermostats down 6 degrees this winter, etc.

I'm in favor of all this and am wondering where I can buy stock in a company making old fashioned long-handles, but the plan doesn't go far enough. I mean, there are other areas where man can save enormous amounts of fuel without just wearing more clothes, and I'm going to think again before buying that stock. You're going to run into problems trying to get women to wear long-handles with mini-skirts.

But let's move on. For example, take tanks. Huge tanks lined up on the desert fighting each other consume thousands of gallons of fuel, whereas you could get the same results with just as many casualties and prisoners at a 100 per cent saving of gas and oil if you used armored knights riding on horses.

For the price of probably half a dozen tanks the U.S. and Russia could equip 5,000 knights on both sides with horses, armored suits and all the swords and lances, they could lug, and the battle could start whenever the referee blew his whistle. The Humane Society might object to the damage to the horses, but the television crews could use the same rules used in filming Westerns: show a man being shot, but never his horse.

This is just a start. Put your mind to it. There must be hundreds of other ways to save fuel, without of course banning the use of lighter fluid. I just don't believe civilization has advanced far enough for a man to light his cigarette with a flint rock.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

P.S. This is off the subject, but I just read that some people now believe that the world is coming to an end. I don't hold with this solution to the situation we've got in Washington.

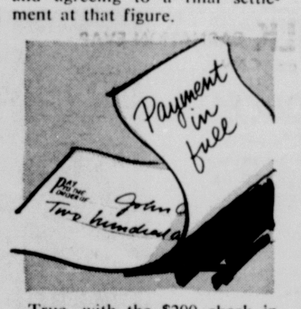
The Family Lawyer

"Payment In Full"

Suppose somebody owes you money. According to your figures, the amount is $300. But the debtor insists that the amount is only $200. One day you receive a check from him for $200. On the back he has written the words: "PAYMENT IN FULL."

Should you cash the check and take a chance on collecting the extra $100 later on? It is tempting to do just that.

The trouble is that if you cash the check as is, the law will probably consider the whole debt wiped out. The debtor has made you a legal offer to settle up for a total of $200. By cashing the check you are accepting his offer and agreeing to a final settlement at that figure.



True, with the $200 check in your hands, you might be reluctant indeed to let it go. One man in this predicament tried to steer a middle course. He erased the word "FULL" and substituted the word "PART," then cashed the check.

However, his strategy did not work. A court held later that he had no claim to any more money. The court said he had no authority, on his own, to alter the terms of the defendant's offer.

Another man tried something else. He too cashed a PAYMENT IN FULL check, but at the same time wrote the debtor that he simply was not accepting it as a full settlement.

But again, a court ruled that the entire debt was wiped out. The court said the man's actions in cashing the check spoke louder than his words of disavowal.

Even if you don't cash the check but merely hang onto it, you might be held to have accepted the debtor's offer. Silence can mean consent.

However, that wouldn't happen right away. In one case, a creditor kept such a check for six weeks before mailing it back to the debtor. The latter thereupon insisted that the delay had cancelled the entire debt.

But a court decided the debt was still due and payable. The court thought six weeks was not an unreasonable time, under the circumstances, for the creditor to weigh his next move.

It's happening to us, too.

Everywhere you turn these days, the costs of just about everything are rising.

It's happening to Texas Power & Light Company, too.

In 1963, pin-type insulators for electric distribution lines cost just 30¢ each. Today, the same insulator costs 77¢. The prices of hardware, materials and equipment of all kinds needed to produce and supply electric power have gone up drastically in the past ten years... and they're continuing to rise.

The costs of constructing generating plants...the interest rates on money borrowed to finance them...and the fuels required to operate them are much greater than just a few years ago.

You want adequate and reliable electric service and TP&L considers it has a responsibility to provide that service. However, to do this, rising costs must be passed on in the form of increased rates to users.

FB Counts Increased Membership

1973 has been a banner year in membership for the Texas Farm Bureau, reports TFB President J. T. (Red) Woodson. The organization scored its biggest membership gain in history, he said.

Total membership as of Oct. 31 (end of the organi- was 152,380 member families, a gain of 15,437 over last year, making the 21st straight year for the TFB to show an increase in members. Tabulations were completed Nov. 6.

All of the 209 organized county Farm Bureaus registered an increase in membership, Woodson said.

Woodson said farmers and ranchers have enjoyed the most favorable prices for their products this year that they have received in a long time.

"But they have felt themselves under fire by intermittent threats of price controls on raw farm products and embargoes on farm exports," he explained. "These fears have caused them to rally behind an organization which could effectively speak for them against such threats," he added.

Farm Bureau Members To Attend State Convention

ABILENE

Some 1,500 Farm Bureau members from all over Texas are expected to attend the Texas Farm Bureau's 40 annual convention to be held at the Civic Center here Dec. 2-4, according to an announcement by J. T. (Red) Woodson of Waco, TFB president.

The convention climaxes a "very successful year" which has seen the state farm organization register the largest membership gain in its history, Woodson said.

The farm leader noted that this year's convention comes at a time when farmers and ranchers are enjoying unprecedented prosperity. But they face many crucial problems, he added.

Woodson cited instability of prices, rising costs, shortages of fuel and fertilizer, Constitution revision and commodity contracts as some of the issues that will be faced by the convention delegates body in its business session.

The annual event gets under way with registration beginning at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 2. A Vesper Service at 6 p.m. will open the convention. Speaker will be Rev. Josef P. Aalbue, pastor of Faith Lutheran Church at Sagerton. Rev. Aalbue was recently named Texas "Rural Minister of the Year."

A young people's Discussion Meet will be held after the Vesper Service, followed by the annual Talent Find.

The Monday morning program will feature the annual president's address by Woodson, and a guest speaker, yet to be named. A ladies luncheon will be held at noon.

ASCS Notes

Wholesale suppliers were asked today to use a "common sense approach" in allocating middle distillate fuels to customers during the current transitional period of the mandatory allocation program effective November 1.

Duke R. Ligon, director, office of Oil and Gas, U. S. Department of the Interior, told wholesale suppliers that "The mandatory program does not require that all customers be reduced to the same volumes (of fuels) purchased in 1972, unless a reduction is necessary to ensure that all customers get a fair share of theie 1972 purchases."

Ligon pointed out that while the producers state that suppliers can use whatever supplies they have left over in any way that they see fit -- after the wholesale purchasers obtain 100 per cent of the fuels they purchased during the same month of 1972--a "common sense approach" should be followed in making good use of the excess fuels.

"We ask that suppliers allocate those excess fuels to customers on a fair-share basis, using the amount of fuel a customer bought in October 1973, as a guide," Ligon said. "In other words, the supplier should sell a customer a proportionate share of the supplier's excess so that the wholesale customer gets some fuel. Under this basis we believe that undue hardships would be avoided."

"It should be noted that the mandatory program provides for suppliers and purchasers agreeing among themselves to either borrow on future allocations or defer current allocations within the level of the total allocation for the year, as long as such arrangements do not result in an involuntary reduction in allocations to other purchasers. Similarly, " he added, "suppliers may borrow or swap products among themselves."

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Farmcast

Compiled From Sources
Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

Down and Up . . . Changes in Regulations . . . Fuel Problems . . . Red Meat Production Declines.

A seven per cent drop in the all farm products index of prices for Texas farmers was noted by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The livestock and livestock products was down nine per cent and the all crops index was down five per cent below a month ago.

Prices received by farmers for hogs, beef cattle and calves were down from a month ago. Corn and grain sorghum prices were also down from a month ago.

Ten commodities were above parity. Wheat at $4.23 per bushel was 73 cents per bushel above parity. Rice is almost $5 above parity. Potatoes are 54 cents above the parity ratio of $4.31 per hundredweight.

In livestock categories, hogs at $39.80 average are $2.80 above parity. Calves averaged $58.30 which is $4.30 above parity. Sheep at $17 are $4.50 above parity. Beef cattle are $2.60 under parity; lambs are $12 under parity.

Grain sorghum at $3.47 per hundred is 50 cents below parity. Cotton at 37.5 cents per pound is almost 30 cents under parity.

Egg prices averaged 57.9 cents per dozen which is almost six cents below last month and six cents below parity. Mohair at $2.40 per pound is about 90 cents above parity; wool at 97 cents is about 25 cents under parity.

REGULATIONS relating to cattle scabies and brucellosis are affecting some Texas counties.

Federal quarantines for cattle scabies were lifted from Parmer and Potter counties. Castro and Deaf Smith are still under quarantine. Scabies are caused by tiny parasitic mites that puncture the skin of cattle and feed on the body fluids released through the wounds. Scabies does not affect the animal's meat, but can cause loss of weight and decreased feed efficiency.

Health regulations governing interstate shipment of breeding cattle from 11 counties in Texas have been changed.

The action was based on the counties' compliance, or lack of compliance, with state-federal requirements aimed at eradicating brucellosis.

Kenedy County regained its modified-certified brucellosis area status while Baylor, Bell, Cass, Henderson, Leon, Mitchell, Navarro, San Saba, Tom Green, and Uvalde counties lost their status for failing to meet certain minimum requirements of the eradication program.

FUEL problems continue to haunt Texas agricultural producers. Diesel at present appears to be causing the most concern. LP gas is in short supply in some areas. The general situation seems to be one of confusion, especially concerning the mandatory allocation of diesel.

Fertilizer shortages are also being reported as are occasional reports of lack of baling wire.

RED MEAT production in Texas is down four per cent in September compared to a month previous and seven per cent under a year ago.

Cattle slaughtered in Texas totaled 268,000 head, which is 22,000 below a month ago and 32,000 less than a year ago.

Nationwide, commercial production of red meat is 13 per cent less than a year ago. Beef production was 13 per cent less than September of 1972.

Tax Planning Can Save Money

Many opportunities to reduce or defer paying federal income taxes are available to farmers, says a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist.

"Cash farm income often fluctuates greatly from year to year. Good financial management includes leveling taxable income to reduce or defer taxes," explains Dr. Wayne A. Hayenga. "Since this year is an unusually high income year for many Texas farmers, quick action can help reduce the 1973 tax bill."

The first step in year-end tax planning is to determine where the farm business stands now, explains the Texas A&M University System economist. Good records make this job much easier.

First, total this year's income and expenses up to the present time. Next, estimate and include expected transactions for the rest of the year. Then, compute depreciation for buildings and equipment. Using these results, estimate the taxable income.

"Depending on your findings, you may want to buy more supplies or sell less than you planned before next January 1," says Hayenga.

"Farmers using the cash method of accounting who need to reduce taxable income should consider buying fertilizer, feed and other supplies for use next year. Buying fertilizer now may be an especially good move, since higher prices and tighter supplies are expected next spring."

Purchasing needed machinery, equipment and breeding animals also helps reduce taxable income, points out the economist. In most cases, farmers can use the 20 per cent additional write-off the first year and can also use the investment tax credit.

Money spent for conservation, land clearing and land forming is deductible, subject to certain limitations. Such expenditures may not only save taxes now but may also be an excellent long-term investment.

Delaying crop or livestock sales until after January 1, 1974 may help reduce taxable income. Crop sales can be delayed by using a deferred payment contract or on-farm storage.

"Remember that the objective of income tax management is not just to minimize taxes, but to maximize after tax profits," points out Hayenga. "Do not sacrifice farm profits by making unwise purchases and sales just to reduce your 1973 taxes by a few dollars. Where a choice exists between a wise tax decision and a good business decision, choose the alternative that will produce the larger income after taxes."

The Internal Revenue Service or the local county Extension office has additional information on income tax management, adds the economist.

The beef heel of round has many aliases. Regionally it has been labeled and known as Pike's Peak, Diamond, Denver or Horseshoe Roast. This fanciful labeling has caused considerable shopping confusion. Under the new standard identity system, it's labeled BEEF ROUND, indicating species and primal or wholesale cut, on the first line and HEEL OF ROUND on the second.

Estate Meetings Continue

By Bill McCutchen

The first of the four Estate Planning Meetings, co-sponsored by the Milam County Program Building Committee and the Milam County Farm Bureau was held Monday night November 12th at Buckholts. If you missed this one, you have three more chances.

The second meeting will be Thursday, October 15th in Cameron at the Farm Bureau Office at 7:3o p.m. The third will be Monday, November 19th at 7:30 p.m. at the Rockdale State Bank meeting room, and the final meeting will be Tuesday, November 20th at 7:30 p.m. at the Thorndale Vocational Agriculture building also at 7:30 p.m.

There has been some change in the program. Don Humble, Cameron attorney will speak at the Cameron and Thorndale meeting instead of Eugene McElyea. McElyea will be at the Rockdale meeting, and Don Parks, Extension Economist-Management will be at all of the Milam County meetings.

Estate planning is important to everyone. Just because you may not be a land owner do not think that this does not concern you.

Americans To Rely On More Beef Production

World demand for beef is increasing, so Americans will have to rely more on production in the United States rather than on increased imports from other countries.

That's the report from Dr. Don Farris and James Simpson with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station after a trip to five beef exporting countries in South America and an International Conference of Agricultural Economists.

"There's little chance that leading South American beef exporters will expand exports over the next four or five years," says the economists, also with the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology at Texas A&M University.

Despite high beef prices on the world market, the leading South American exporters -- Argentina and Uruguay -- probably will not expand production due to a heavy export tax, believe the economists. Expansion will be more rapid in Brazil and Paraguay, but the lower production responde due to marketing of four-year-old steers combined with rapid population growth will generally hold exports in check.

"South American exporting countries could sharply increase exports in a few years if producer prices were to reach levels near those prevailing in the U. S. However, there is no indication that this will happen," say Farris and Simpson. "For example, the price for live cattle in Uruguay has not exceeded 17 cents per pound this year compared to 40-50 cents per pound in the U.S. The Uruguay market is generally the lowest price cattle market in the world."

South American beef goes mainly to Europe due to the U. S. embargo on uncooked beef from that continent. Canned and cooked-frozen beef is shipped to the U.S. and is not under the quota applied to fresh and frozen beef imports. However, their exports have a significant effect on available world beef supplies.

"Europe and Japan are competing strongly for Australian beef so imports from that country will be limited." according to the economists. "Although Australia has increases exports in recent years, it was partly at the expense of a depressed wool industry. Now that wool prices are high, beef production may not increase as fast."

Rep. Kubiak Warns Federal Officials About Diesel Fuels

Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale today warned federal officials that they are courting disaster in Texas agriculture if "immediate, affirmative action" is not taken to make diesel fuels available to area farmers.

Existing supplies are adequate to offset the immediate crisis if they could be put on the market on a fair share basis, Kubiak said.

It is simply a matter of the federal government putting its public announcements in writing and speeding the proper paperwork to Texas, he said.

In telegrams to President Nixon and the Department of the Interior, Kubiak urged federal officials to rush to Texas the necessary forms for diesel fuel distributors to sell their supplies by "rule of reason" with the lifting of mandatory allocations.

"This year's crops are not being harvested and ground is not being prepared for next season's crops," Kubiak wired. "We are headed for disaster."

Garden Club Focus On Christmas Show

Preparation for the Fleur-de-lis Garden Club Christmas flower show got underway last week with a drawing for placements at the home of Mrs. Don Humble Tuesday evening and a flower arrangement workshop Saturday morning at the Cameron Community Center.

Mrs. Dana Kestenbaum, flower show chairman, presented flower show schedules at the Tuesday meeting and reviewed rules for artistic and horticulture entries. The six artistic classes also met informaly to plan Christmas trees and door wreaths for their sections.

During a brief business meeting Mrs. Edward Boudreaux, Mrs. Keith Rains and Mrs. Richard Crowe were welcomed as new members.

Refreshments were served in the dining room where a large arrangement of mums centered the serving table.

Mrs. George Hollas was guest speaker for the Saturday morning workshop at the Community Center. Emphasising the use of appropriate containers for flower arrangements, Mrs. Hollas said "a container can be fashioned of anything that will hold water-such as stacked coffee cups for a kitchen arrangement."

She listed basic rules for flower arrangements and proper conditioning of plant material.

A brunch of sweet roles, sausage balls, fruit and coffee, were served during the workshop. Fruit was served from a fresh pineapple holder and an arrangement of white mums and fall squash centered the table.

Hostesses for the workshop were Mrs. William Kelm, Mrs. Bill McCutchen and Mrs. Larry Coker.

Personal Mention

Dr. and Mrs. Ray Green and children of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, recently visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Green, Jr. in Cameron. Dr. Green a graduate of the Wake Forrest Medical School, is completing his residency in genecology and obstetrics at North Carolina Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Cameron's German dancers, plus enough friends to fill a chartered bus, were in New Braunfels last weekend for that cities annual Wurstfest celebration. The Cameron dancers who included the Bruce Crooks, Charles Hundles, Stewart Perkins, Albert Michalkas, Clarence Hanels, Jimmy Woodums, J. C. Komars, Charles Kunz, Laura Perkins and Larry Coker, performed for the Wurstfest crowds at 2, 4 and 6 p.m. Saturday. One circle of the Cameron dancers had also performed opening weekend of Wurstfest. It was the dance groups third year to perform at New Braunsfel.

Apples Rate High For Snak, Dinner Or Dessert

Red and Golden Delicious apples from the mountain orchards of North Carolina are in your market now. These are the first apples to be picked in the season, and we can thank the Carolina climate for that! Warm days and cool nights hasten the ripening process so that these apples are marketed early in September—and all through the season, too.

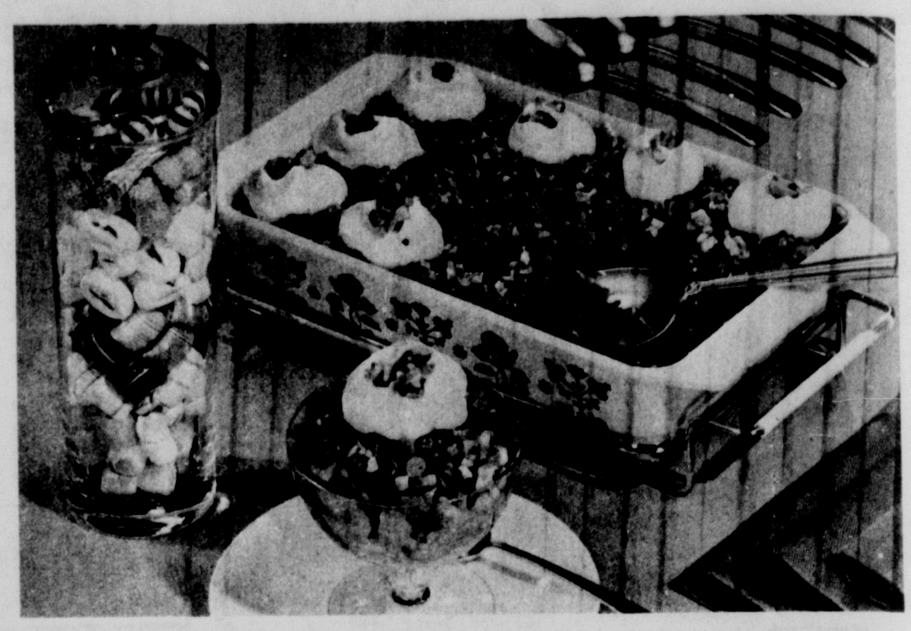
Extra firm, extra crisp and juicy, Delicious apples are just right for eating out of hand or cooking in your favorite recipe. When selecting Delicious apples for cooking, be sure to pick fruit that is firm to the touch, otherwise they may tend to become overly soft.

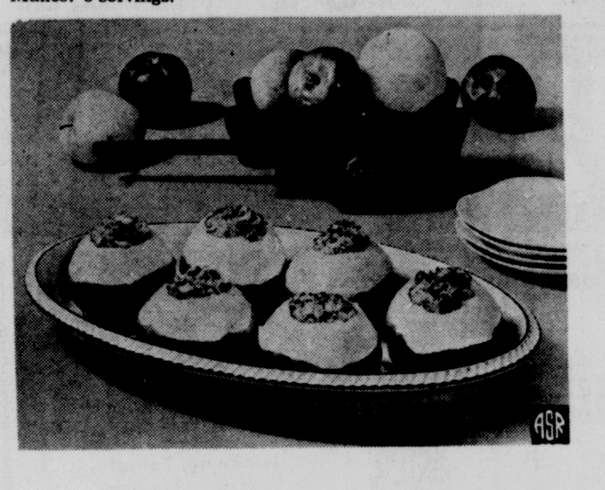
Ham Stuffed Baked Apples—try them for breakfast or brunch, served with herbed scrambled eggs. There are good supplies of Delicious apples in your market. Enjoy your share now.

Ham Stuffed Baked Apples

6 large Red Delicious apples
1 cup finely chopped cooked ham or luncheon meat
¼ cup soft bread crumbs
3 tablespoons finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon finely chopped fresh onion
¼ teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon pepper

Wash apples, core, and remove a wide strip of peel around the tops. Mix ham, bread crumbs, celery, onion, salt and pepper; spoon about 3 tablespoons into each of the apple cavities. Place in a baking dish and add ½ inch hot water. Cover and bake in 350°F. oven for 30 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking 30 minutes longer or until apples are tender, basting occasionally with liquid in baking dish. Makes: 6 servings.





A Dessert Delight. . .

Succulent spiced apples baking on brisk fall or winter days . . . they'll fill any household with their aroma and add flavor to a meal.

Mix them with some roasted peanut candy and a few other tasty ingredients and you'll create an easy-to-make Peanut Candy Apple Crisp dessert that's sure to please dinner guests and brighten a blustery day.

Unexpected visitors who pop in over the fall and winter holidays also can be treated to this peanut-apple combination. It can be prepared and served with so little effort, but will have a big and flavorful effect.

Here's a recipe for Peanut Candy Apple Crisp developed by the National Confectioners Association:

1 five-ounce peanut candy bar
1 cup crisp dry rice cereal
2 tablespoons melted butter
4 cups peeled sliced apples
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup melted butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Crush the peanut candy bar into bits. Mix candy with the rice cereal and the 2 tablespoons of butter. Blend the brown sugar, ½ cup melted butter and cinnamon with apple slices. Fold the apple mixture into a 10 x 6-inch baking dish. Cover this with the candy-cereal mix and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 30 minutes, or until apples are tender. Serve hot or cold, plain or with whipped cream. Makes four servings.

Swedish Apple Rosettes

Ladies at bridge; teens at a slumber(less) party; cookie monsters, young and old; and husbands snitching samples from the kitchen—all will rave over Swedish Apple Rosettes.

These thin wafers delight the taste with a delicate hint of lemon peel, nutmeg and apple. Whenever you want a different, but delectable, flavor treat, try Swedish Apple Rosettes.

Enriched flour in the thin batter means better nutrition for your family and friends because enriched tells you that it contains the essential B-vitamins — thiamine, niacin and riboflavin — and that important mineral, iron — all nutrients needed daily for good health.

Swedish Apple Rosettes

4 to 5 dozen

¾ cup enriched flour*
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel (optional)
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
1 apple, peeled, cored
1 cup milk
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon oil
Vegetable oil for deep frying
Confectioners' sugar

Stir together dry ingredients. Puree apple in blender or food chopper; add milk, egg and oil. Beat together apple mixture and dry ingredients with wire wisk until smooth. Refrigerate if desired. Prepare rosette iron by dipping in preheated 375° oil; shake to remove excess oil. Lower hot iron into bowl of batter to not more than ¾ depth of iron (if batter goes over top, cookie will be difficult to remove). Lower coated iron into hot oil and fry until delicately browned, about 30 seconds. Remove from oil and slip cookie from iron. Drain, inverted on paper towels. Repeat process until batter is gone. Dip cookie in confectioners' sugar

*Spoon flour into dry measuring cup; level. Do not scoop.

Timely Tips On Saving Energy Around The House

Heavy automobiles and appliances that need rich diets of gas and electricity aren't the only offenders in the energy crisis. Many persons unwittingly waste energy around the house without realizing what's consuming so many kilowatts.

During the heating season, aluminum storm windows will cut in half the heat energy that is needlessly lost through windows of a house. The National Bureau of Standards advises that an investment in storm windows (or thermally insulated windows) will pay for itself within a decade. You'll enjoy greater comfort in your home, and also save scarce fuel supplies.

Clever cooks save gas and electricity by applying production line efficiencies to food preparation. They don't heat up a 30-inch oven to bake a pie. Four pies will bake in the same time and energy it takes for one. Surplus pies get wrapped in aluminum foil and popped into the freezer during evening hours. They'll freeze while demand for energy is low.

Warped pots and pans heat the kitchen and the cook, wasting energy. They're a safety hazard, too. Manufacturers of gas and electric ranges recommend medium weight aluminum cookware because it conducts heat so well, saving food as well as energy. Match the size of pans to burners and heating units for efficient use of fuel. A cover on the pot keeps heat inside and speeds up cooking, too.

An innocent looking iron needs an ample diet of kilowatts to remove wrinkles. A shiny sheet of aluminum foil, placed between the ironing board pad and its cover, will bounce heat from the board to the garment. And when the iron's sole plate is made of aluminum, it heats quickly and evenly, lightens work, too.

Turkey Prices To Go Higher

The demand for turkeys will increase as the holiday season approaches, and that trend plus fewer birds in cold storage will keep prices up over the next few months.

That's the contention of Dr. David B. Mellor, poultry marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

According to Mellor, turkey prices generally are more stable than broiler and egg prices because most turkeys are sold frozen or in some processed form, such as turkey pie. However, cold storage stocks have gone down due to increased demand this year, so prices have increased.

Citing figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Mellor notes that turkey production so far this year is about two per cent above that of 1972. However, production during the remainder of the year -- usually a heavy marketing season --will be lower.

Cold storage holdings on September 1 totaled 261 million pounds, down 53 million pounds from a year earlier.

According to the Texas A&M University System specialist, retail turkey prices averaged 55 cents a pound in 1972 and are now near the record levels of 1948-49.

"But turkeys are still a good buy," contends Mellor, "when you consider how much other goods and services have increased in recent years. The average factory worer today can buy almost two more pounds of turkey with wages from one hour of labar than he could in 1959."

Mellor invites consumers to buy more turkeys for nutritious meals abounding in high quality protein. "Turkeys are 'in season' the year around!"

TSTA Objects To New Constitution

The Constitutional Revision Commission (CRC) already faces opposition to its proposed rewrite of the Texas Constitution before taking its final vote on the document.

The legislative committee of the Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA) has several objections to the new Article VII dealing with education, G. H. Kirby of Wichita Falls, committee chairman, said.

For one thing, there is no mention of the Teacher Retirement System (TRS). This system, with more than 300,000 active members, is included in the present Consitution.

"The state and teacher contributions to this system represent the retirement existence of most of these persons who have dedicated their lives to public education, " Kirby pointed out, "and nothing can be allowed to jeopardize that."

The CRC proposal contains only four lines continuing the present state retirement systems, and that appears in Section X of the CRC document. The TSTA committee feels the TRS should have more specific protection.

The present plan of electing the State Board of Education according to congressional districts is preferred by the TSTA panel over the CRC proposal ro require the Governor to appoint four additional members to this Board.

The CRC provision on aid to private-church schools is not strong enough, the TSTA committee feels.

Area Students Complete Course

Two Cameron students and four students from Rosebud all were recent graduates of the Food Service Supervisors course at Mary-Hardin-Baylor.

They are Violet Landmark and Annette Sandford of Cameron; and Estelle Heugatter, L. C. Johnson, Ruth McIntosh and Lucille White all of Rosebud.

The graduates completed 96 hours of class participation and 36 weeks of on-the-job experience.

Retirement Planning Saves Taxes

"This may be the year when many Texas farmers, ranchers and other agribusinessmen want to start on a tax sheltered retirement plan," says Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Farmers and other self-employed individuals can take advantage of a 1962 Congressional law which extended the advantage of the same tax sheltered pensions and profit-sharing plans long enjoyed by corporate employees. They do this by enrolling in a self-employed retirement plan, commonly called a Keogh plan, that is available through many major banks, insurance companies and mutual funds."

Under the law, a self-employed person can set aside a certain portion of his income in a retirement fund, explains the Texas A&M University System specialist. Earnings on the accumulated money are not taxable until the individual retires. Then the money may be taxed as a capital gain or ordinary income, depending on the method of withdrawal.

"The plan is completely voluntary and any self-employed person is eligible. Under the law, up to 10 per cent of earned income or $2,500 , whichever is less, can be invested each year in an approved retirement plan." notes Hayenga.

For example, a farmer with a gross income of $50,000 and $20,000 expenses could defer about $900 in Taxes by putting $2,500 into an approved retirement plan.

There are several retirement options a self-employed farmer can select depending on his situation. The contribution to a retirement plan may be based on a fixed number of dollars per year or may be expressed as a certain percentage of net or gross farm income which would avoid a fixed dollar commitment each year.

Proposed 4-H Center Gets Grant

The proposed $1.5 million Texas 4-H Center moved another step toward reality thanks to a $20,000 grant by the Alcoa Foundation. The gift was announced by Fred P. Bergeron, Rockdale Works manager.

The center, to be located on a 78-acre site near Brownwood, will serve as a site for outdoor activities and social living programs for youngsters nine through 13 years of age, as well as a central establishment for the development of all phases of 4-H by members, leaders and extension service personnel.

The initial Alcoa Foundation check of $7,000 was presented to 4-H Foundation chairman T. Louis Austin, who is also president of Texas Utilities, Inc., of Dallas. Subsequent checks in the amounts of $7,000 and $6,000 will be presented in 1974 and 1975, respectively, bringing the three-year total to $20,000, according to Bergeron.

The grant is one of thousands awarded annually by the Alcoa Foundation, orginally established by the company in 1952. Since that time, the foundation has awarded gifts totaling more than $25 million for religious, charitable, scientific, literary and educational purposes. Grants in excess of $3.8 million were awarded in 1972 alone.

The state 4-H Youth Development Foundation started its construction funds campaign in 1971. The project is co-sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, located on the campus of Texas A&M University, and the 13- 4-H Texas districts.

IRS Charges Temple Man

B. C. Gillon, age 48, 2005 East Avenue I, Temple, Texas pleaded nolo contendere on November 5, 1973, to one count of an eight count indictment returned against him by a Federal Grand Jury in Austin on March 29, 1973. Federal Judge Jack Roberts accepted Gillon's plea and found Gillon guilty on the one count. Judge Roberts will sentence Gillon on January 10, 1974.

The indictment charged Gillon with aiding and assisting in the preparation of eight false income tax returns for taxpayers in the Temple area by willfully overstating and/or falsifying his clients itemized deductions.

Gillon was one of 21 income tax return preparers arrested by special agents of the Intelligence Division in the Austin District during the 1973 filing season in a major crackdown by IES on unethical return preparers.

According to Richard J. Stakem, Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, the Federal offense of preparing false returns is punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000, imprisonment for not more than three years, or both.

'74 Outlook Good For Broilers

Broiler supplies are beginning their seasonal decline, but prices may also drop as demand normally lessens in the fall. However, the outlook for 1974 indicates that more broilers will be on the market, says Dr. David B. Mellor, poultry marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Broiler producers were faced with a number of uncertainties this summer when prices were frozen and feed costs continued to spiral," points out Mellor. "Some took drastic action to limit their flocks, but for the most part production continued on a normal scale.

"On the other hand, demand soared due to rumors of food shortages and the extended price freeze on beef. As a consequence, broiler prices also climbed."

Mellor cites a report from the U. S. Department of Agriculture that shows broiler production at the end of 1973 will su pass 1972 year-end levels. However, overall production for 1973 should be down about two percent from 1972 levels. Production the first half of 1974 should exceed production during the first six months of 1973 by three to five per cent.

September marketings will be down about five per cent while October marketings should drop only two per cent from 1972 levels. Marketings during the last two months of the year should be about equal to last year.

Despite the higher prices for broilers, these prices are now lower than they were 20 years ago," notes the Texas A&M University System specialist. "The average factory workers today can purchase eight pounds of broilers (at 50 cents a pound) with wages from one hour of labor compared to 5.2 pounds in 1959.

"So, broilers contined to be a good buy."

Lone Star Gas Announces Industrial Rate Revision

Lone Star Gas Company today announced a rate revision affecting some of its large industrial customers, effective January 1, 1974.

The revision is expected to add an estimated $7.3 million to Lone Star's annual revenues, based on 1972 consumption by these customers and assuming approval by the City of Dallas for those contracts under that city's jurisdiction.

Lone Star noted that additional revenue will result from an increase in gas cost adjustments. These revenues will be offset, however, by increased gas purchase costs.

Robert E. Reading rate officer and assistant controller, stated that the new rates are fully cost justified. "Our industrial customers are required to bear their full share of increased investments and rapidly rising costs incurred by the company in providing gas service," Reading stated.

He explained that the increased cost to provide service for industrial customers is distinct and apart from Lone Star's current Railroad Commission rate case, which is designed to recover higher costs of serving residential and commercial customers.

The rate change involves 108 firms who are served under five-year contracts, rather than a standard one-year contract. These firms will be placed on the same rate schedule with all of Lone Star's approximately 8,000 one-year industrial customers.

Rates to Lone Star's industrial customers are subject to annual revision.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN

The difference between a disagreeable or disabling degree of deafness and a properly fitted, well engineered hearing aid has improved the health and restored the self confidence of many a person who's suffered from hearing loss.

However, complaints filed with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division indicate that there are others who claim they have been not only disappointed, but defrauded. When they tried to solve their hearing problems by dealing with salespersons who proved to be unscrupulous.

Under Texas law, anyone engaged in the business of fitting or selling hearing aids must be licensed by the Texas Board of Fitting and Dispensing of Hearing Aids, after passing a set of examinations and meeting a list of board requirements for eligibility.

Physicians and surgeons, and their professional assistants, are exempt from that particular act, which was designed to apply only to persons who specialize in what normally is a very useful, and needed, service.

The licensing law states that is is unlawful to be licensed for the purpose of "fraudulently fitting and dispensing" hearing aids.

Our office has jurisdiction, though, when there is evidence of a violation of the Texas Deceptive Practices-Consumer Protection Act -- fraudulent or misleading sales or advertising practices. In cases like that, the state board refers complaints to our Consumer Protection Division.

Just recently, we obtained a court-approved assurance of voluntary compliance after a dispenser in a North Texas city had advertised that the aid he was selling could help a person "with a 100% deaf ear" hear again. In truth, there was no way for a "100% deaf earr" to receive sound, so the receiver system transmitted sound to the good ear.

Another complaint involved an 83-year-old woman whose sole income was an $85 monthly Social Security Check. When her daughter discovered the woman had been talked into signing a contract for a hearing aid costing in excess of $1,000 the daughter ordered stop payment on the check, and took her mother to two physicians.

Both of the doctors stated that the mother had only a 6% hearing loss, and didn't need a hearing aid.

Drive To Eliminate Boll Weevil

The House Agriculture Subcommittee on Cotton, concluding hearings on progress being made to eradicate the boll weevil, was told that plans are beng made for a Texas to Atlantic Ocean federal-state drive designed to eliminate this insect which is so costly to the cotton industry and American consumers.

Subcommittee Chairman B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., commenting on testimony received during the two day public hearings, said:

"I am encouraged by the reports we have received on the results of a pilot project carried on in Mississippi. We must do everything possible now to see that this sort of project is initiated on a national basis, and the statements we received from the Department of Agriculture officials indicate that real headway is being made toward that objective."

He referred specifically to testimony of Dr. Clayton Yeutter, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Marketing. In response to questions by Sisk and other Congressmen, who noted that the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 authorizes funds for federal participation in a cotton boll weevil eradication program, Yeutter said the Department has requested the President's Office of Management and Budget to approve a $100,000 item for preplanning activities early next fiscal year. Federal funds for actual eradication efforts would be asked later.

Man has a hunger for knowledge. It first shows itself in childhood and prompts incessant questions and exasperating experiments.

But it continues all through life. Recently, on discovering something you didn't know, you murmured to yourself, "Gotta look that up . . ."

Upon this basic hunger for knowledge, the Church's program of religious education is planned. That's why we urge parents to foster a Christian atmosphere in the home. It is also why the Church provides religious instruction long before secular education begins. And it accounts for continuing emphasis on youth and young adult activities in most congregations.

We adults haven't outgrown the hunger for knowledge. Most of us recognize that our scientific and material progress points up the crucial need for spiritual standards to believe in. God has vital truth to impart to men. The place to look it up is your church.

MHB Hilley Elected To Lamar Hall

BELTON

Dr. Lewis M. Hilley, chairman of the Health and Physical Education Department at Mary Hardin-Baylor College, was one of the first 12 men elected into the Lamar University Cardinal Hall of Honor.

Dr. Hilley was honored with the other selectees Nov. 10 at halftime of the Lamar - Louisiana Tech football game in Beaumont.

Chairman of the Physical and Health Education Department at Lamar from 1955 - 62, Hilley also served as Director of Athletics from 1951 - 62.

During his tenure at Lamar, Hilley coached the Cardinals to 11 Lone Star Conference titles in tennis. His tennis teams also won six NAIA titles, 1 NCAA title and one World's Intercollegiate title.

In addition to his tennis record at Lamar, Hilley also won nine Lone Star Conferences titles in golf and two in basketball.

The Sports Herald

IT's ALL OVER. . .

Football has ended for many people. Coaches and players can now only sit back and plan for next years season. With thoughts of errors made in this past season, they will prepare to correct them next year, and continue to dream of a championship. Of course, many coaches dreams will be interrupted by the planning of a championship title in basketball, baseball, and track.

However, some players and coaches still have hopes of a football championship. Among these are two area teams; Belton and Rockdale.

As known by all Yoemen fans, Belton captured the North Zone Championship by defeating Cameron, 27-6, last Friday night. At the same time, Rockdale who had already clinched the South Zone Title was stung by a, 35-6, Gatesville Hornet victory. As Rockdale and Belton meet next Saturday night to determine the District 12-AAA championship. Belton will be favored. I'm predicting a 21-6 Belton victory, but a football can bounce many ways. You can bet that Rockdale will be praying for all the right bounces.

ALSO . . .

With the close of the regular season play, the Cameron Herald football predictors can also sit back and, prehaps, dream of a better record next season.

This season James Hudson compiled the best predicting, record with 71 correct predictions out of a possible 90. The Herald wishes to congratulate Mr. Hudson and to thank him for his efforts. Max Shuemate and Cecil Widner captured the second best records both with 70 correct predictions. They were followed by Bertie Shuemate with 67 correct, L. W. Stroup Jr. with 64 correct, and Johnnie Barrett with 63 correct.

The Cameron Herald would also like to thank these men for their efforts, and for making it possible to bring the Herald football predictions to you, the public. We sincerely hope that you have enjoyed them.

AND REMEMBER . . .

Football has ended but basketball will soon begin. Once again the Yoemen will need your support to guide them to a District Championship.

Poaching Violations Listed

During the month of September, Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens filed some 63 citations against Texans who killed or were in possession of deer in closed season.

Last year's figures for the same period were 27 violations.

The majority of citations issued were for no fishing license, 502 violations, and another 108 anglers were cited for having undersized fish, usually redfish below the 14-inch minimum.

Failure to have life jackets for each person in a boat accounted for 326 citations.

Regulations governing personal flotation devices changed Oct. 1 and this month's citation report will probably indicate an increase in water safety violations.

AAA Says Reduced Speed Will Ease Gas Shortage

The American Automobile Association said today it agreed with a government statement that be reduced if vehicles traveled no more than 50 miles per hour, but said a number of other steps also could be taken to help conserve fuel, some with even more significant results.

A study released this week by the Federal Highway Administration shows that 1970 or later model year cars driving at 70 miles per hour consume 30.5 per cent more gasoline than they do at 50 miles per hour, and estimated a five per cent reduction in gas consumption if all vehicles traveled at no more than the 50 mph rate.

While the FHWA test involved 12 vehicles of various weights, AAA noted that the fuel economy for any specific car depends upon individaul vehicle design and individual driver habits and that paradoxically enough some cars will use more gas at 50 mph than at higher speeds.

AAA pointed out, however, that since 54 per cent of vehicle trips are less than five miles, and 75 percent are less than 10 miles, many will never reach speeds as high as 50 so other methods should also be employed to save gas. Chief among these would be formation of car pools and a comprehensive effort by cities toward improved traffic flow in heavily congested urban areas to minimize idling time in "stop and go" traffic.

The motoring organizations also cited a report of its affiliated Automobile Club of Michigan that showed a maximum 44 per cent fuel loss when a car is operated by a "poor driver" as compared to a driver with effective driving habits. Among good driving techniques employed in the study were smooth acceleration (as opposed to "jack rabbit" starts), traveling at an even rate of speed, and never using brakes more than prudently required to make routine stops.

Another study by the AA-affiliated Minnesota State Automobile Association showed that gasoline mileage could be increased by more than 25 percent when proper maintenance of a vehicle is combined with conservative driving techniques.

It was estimated that these measures would also reduce the cost of car operation by $100 per year by eliminating engine wear and tear.

Texans Make Plans For Nation's 200th Birthday

By Bill Hobby

Although our nation's 200th birthday still is two years away, thousands of Texans already are making plans to participate in the party.

So far, five Texas citiex -- Galveston, Lubbock, San Antonio, San Marcos, and Temple -- have been disiganted National Bicentennial Communities.

This endorsement is obtained by creating a bicentennial committee representative of the entire community's population.

The community then establishes programs under each of three themes: Heritage ' 6, projects relating to the community's history; Festival U.S.A., projects aimed at involving all citizens and attracting visitors; and Horizona '76 projects designed for the future.

Proposals for national recognition should first be submitted to the Bicentennial Commission of Texas at the University of Texas at Arlington. Once state endorsement is obtained, it is submitted for national recognition.

The projects being planned now are diverse and exciting. Sequin, for example, has propbsed 31 bicentennial projects, including the creation of a monument to Juan N. Sequin, expansion of the city's Fourth of July Freedom Fiesta, and establishment of a Bicentennis Civic Center.

San Antonio's plans are voluminous and range from a daily calendar of events to restoration of the Mexican market in the downtown area.

One of the most unique projects in the country is underway in Donley County. The 3,000 townspeople and children of Clarendon and surrounding area are building an amphitheater on a natural lake site, making the bricks unsed in construction of the tiers by hand.

Under the Festival U. S. A. theme, Temple will be the first Texas host city next February for a group of Guatemalans, including members of the Guatemalan Army Marimba Band, the Guatemalan Folk Ballet, and a group presenting an exhibit of Mayan arts and crafts.

Projects here in Austin may include further beautification of Town Lake, restoration of some of the city's historic sites, and promotion of neighborhood Fourth of July celebrations.

In San Marcos, a hike and bike trail along the previously inaccessible San Marcos River has been created as a bicentennial project. The Bicentennial Young Environmentalists are in charge of maintaining the beauty of the river there.

The citizens of these communities certainly deserve our support and thanks.

Also, I would urge all other Texas communities to consider participating in the bicentennial celebration. Let's make our nation's 200th birthday a truly gala affair.

Check Furnaces For Cold Weather

"Checking your furnace filters will help avoid problems when the heating season arrives," says W. S. Allen, agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Most warm air furnaces in use today are equipped with filters. Keeping these clean can add to your comfort by reducing airborne particles in the air. Furthermore, a clogged filter can prevent proper operation of furnaces," the Texas A&M University System specialist points out.

A dirty filter may restrict the air flow to such an extent to prevent proper heating of the house. Restricted air flow may also cause an overheated furnace, especially if the high temperature limit control should fail to operate.

"On most furnaces the filter can be easily removed and replaced," says Allen. "If you don't know the size filter to purchase, remove the old one and examine it. The size should be marked on it."

After removing the filter the engineer suggests using the hose attachment of a vacuum cleaner to remove any accumulation of lint and dust in the blower section of the furnace.

Allen adds that the belt on the furnace blower should be examined and replaced if it is cracked or shows signs of wear.

"Most fans and fan motors should be oiled about once or twice a year," Allen points out. "Add enough oil to oil holes to fill the cup or opening without overflowing.

A lightweight automobile engine oil is satisfactory unless a particular oil is specified in your instruction manual, addes the engineer.

Job Corps Is Best Bargain

What is the best bargain for unemployed, out-of-school young men and women, ages 16-21? The Job Corps, thinks the Texas Employment Commission.

"There are now openings for such young people who are interested in improving themselves and qualifying for the jobs that are available in the labor market of today," says J. V. Owens, office manager of the Texas Employment Commission office in Temple.

"The Job Corps strengthens basic educational skills, and offers programs of excellent training in a wide range of vocations. In addition, personal development is encouraged through sports, music, hobbies, student government, and recreation."

The Job Corps Center at Camp Gary, San Marcos, is for young men. Another, for young women, is located at McKinney. Most Job Corps enrollees from Texas go to these two centers.

Once they complete training, Job Corps graduates get help in finding a job in the skills they have trained for. Texas Employment Commission makes its services available.

The Texas Employment Commission is the recruiting agency for the Job Corps. In Temple, the office is located at 301 West Avenue G.

Catfish To Aid In P&W Tests

Mr. Smith, you will be glad to hear that your friend, Fritz, whom you left at the Heart of the Hills Fishery Research Station near Kerrville is alive and well.

He has put on 10 pounds and Parks and Wildlife Department biologists think they have a job lined up for him.

Fritz is a yellow catfish caught by Mr. Smith a couple of months ago. At that time he weighed about 30 pounds. Fritz looked so nice that Mr. Smith didn't want to eat him, so he asked biologist Bill Rutledge at the station if he needed a catfish.

Rutledge agreed that Fritz did look too good to eat, and besides Mr. Smith had gone to a lot of trouble keeping him alive, so Fritz was put into a pond.

Yellow catfish love sunfish, and that is how Fritz has been putting on weight--eating sunfish. In fact, his job will involve sunfish.

The research station is conducting an experiment on fish sounds.

They are trying to learn what sounds fish make and if fish can signal each other.

One project is to determine if they make fright noises. This is where Fritz comes in.

Fritz is going to be placed in a pond rigged with sound receiving instruments. Then a bunch of sunfish are going to be released into the same pond.

THANKSGIVING

More than any other holiday, Thanksgiving has become a "feast" day. It is a commemorative celebration of the first Pilgrim harvest and is a time to gather family and friends together. We give thanks for what we have and share with those who are less fortunate. It is an especially good time to invite those away-from-home friends into your home.

The Thanksgiving feast is one of the most traditional of all holidays. While a few side dishes may be regional or family favorites, the turkey, cranberry sauce, pumpkin and mincemeat pie are national favorites. There are many convenience foods available today which let you take a few shortcuts to make "feast day" easier and more fun—brown 'n serve or frozen rolls, canned and frozen vegetables, frozen pies and toppings, prepared stuffing mixes, even boneless turkey roasts, if you wish. Another way to enjoy the day is to select as many foods as possible which can be prepared ahead of time.

The turkey can be roasted covered or uncovered, in a brown paper bag or foil tent, or in one of the newer cooking bags. It can be stuffed or unstuffed. However, I do recommend using a meat thermometer inserted into the thickest part of the thigh without touching the bone. When it reads 180-185 degrees, the bird is done. The length of time this takes will vary. Allow the roasted turkey to "rest" at room temperature at least 15-20 minutes for easier carving. Combine friends, family, good food and a relaxed atmosphere to make it a day for which everyone is truly thankful.
